DR. PAUL W. BROADBENT

Medical Student To Study in Haifa Hospital

Paul W. Broadbent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Broadbent of Heber City, left by plane for the state of Israel on Monday of this week.

Paul will graduate from the University of Utah Medical School this spring and was given the opportunity, along with 18 other American students, to complete his schooling at the Ram Dam Hospital in Haifa, Israel.

After a ten week's stay at Haifa Paul plans to complete a tour around the world, after which he will be assigned to one of the Army hospitals in the States to serve his internship.

Dr. Paul Broadbent completes South American tour

Dr. Paul Broadbent, in company of another Doctor and Dentist, has just completed his second tour of South American Countries for the U.S. Army. Their assignment was to visit the American Embassies in Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, Paraguay and Peru. They give medical and dental assistance to the members of the Embassy Staffs.

After returning he came to the States for specialized medical training and while in the states he flew home to Utah and spent a few very pleasant days visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Broadbent of Heber City and other members of the family.

Paul is now serving his second assignment in Panama, having spent four years there on his first assignment and then being assigned to the Tripler Hospital in Hawaii where he was head of the emergency department. While in Hawaii he studied in the field of emergency treatment and medicines and was successful in passing his national examinations in that field.

He will be in Panama for the next few years where he is administrator of the Army hospital in Colon, Panama.

Paul and Marilyn have three children and are enjoying their assignment.

traveling theater troop as the most attractive girl in attendance at the play.

When 19 years of age, she was married to Heber J. Giles in the old Endowment House in Salt Lake City. The date was December 2, 1880. Prior to their marriage, Heber had begun a five-room home, but didn't have it finished. However, they lived in it during the winter and then finished plastering and building the home when good weather came.

After they had been married six years, Heber was called on a mission to Great Britain. He left his wife and three children, including a baby only nine days old, to serve in that mission field for two years. After he returned, in 1888, two more boys were born. He had been home only four years when a heart attack claimed his life. The youngest of his five children was then only three weeks old.

Susana sorrowed at his death, and had many trying times adjusting to her new life along with her children, but she reconciled herself to life and determined her family would be cared for. They were known in Heber as an extremely happy family.

She took in sewing and began dressmaking to support her children. Her faith in the administrations of the priesthood helped her through many times of illness as the children grew.

As her children matured they helped their mother and spared her as many worries as possible.

DAVID A. MIMA MURDOCK BROADBENT

David Albert Broadbent was born at Goshen, Utah County, on May 14, 1871, the fifth child of Mary Jane Nuttle and his father, who had three divisions of his family of 31 children. Mary Jane was the second wife, and her family consisted of seven sons and four daughters.

The parents were emigrants from England and were among the first settlers of Monroe, Sevier County. They began their life in a dugout, but were soon driven by the Indians from their home and took refuge at Spring City, Sanpete County. Shortly after they settled in Spring City, Goshen, Utah County, was opened for settlement, and the family moved there.

David was born while the family was in Goshen, and at the age of six years he was given responsibility with his eight-year-old brother Joseph to tend the town herd of cows in the foothills of the Santaquin Mountains.

When David was 14, the family returned to Monroe, Sevier County, and it was here that David worked seven years on the farm. As he approached his twenty-first birthday he left home to gain an education. He enrolled at Brigham Young University in January of 1893, and for four years worked his way through school, receiving no assistance from any source other than his own efforts. At the time of his graduation in 1897 he had consistently been on the honor roll and had more hours of scholastic credit in the institution than any other member of the class of that year.

At the time of graduation he was called by President Wilford Woodruff to fill a mission in the South Sea Islands, primarily to translate the Book of Mormon. However, it was later decided he should be called to organize a Church school at Graham County, Arizona. When the saints in that area could not obtain a suitable building for the school, David was appointed to serve in the Southern States Mission. He left for Tennessee on January 6, 1898, and filled an honorable mission for the Church.

When he returned from the South he worked at the Golden Gate Mills in Tooele until the opening of schools in September, 1900, when he became principal and teacher in Charleston School.

For 37 years, Mr. Broadbent served the people of Wasatch County and the state of Utah in public and in Church school positions. He began in Charleston, where he
